AN EASY VICTORY FOR THE DWYER COLT-THE THER RACES.

The meeting of Kingston and Firenzi at a mile and a quarter brought out the largest attendance which the Brooklyn Jockey Club has seen since the spring meeting, and excited a great variety of conjecture and comment. Only those two ran in the First Special, and they met at weight for age. Kingston carried 118 pounds, with Isaac Murphy in the saddle, and Firenzi had 115 pounds, with Garrison up. Firenzi was made an overwhelming favorite at odds on, such odds, indeed, as were prohibitory to the great mass of the public, many of whom were tempted by the attractive quotations against Kingston to put a little sey on the Dwyer colt. They were happy after It was thought indispensable to go out and she the pape with Firenzi. As it was well known that Kingston was just now in the perfection of condition. and as he had beaten Firenzi in every contest in which hey had met at a distance below a mile and a half, both last year and this year, Mr. Haggin and his trainer, Matt. Byrnes, did not feel that it would be safe to trust the issue to a rush at the finish. Firenzi's slaying power is conceded by every one to be superior o Lingston's. She can undoubtedly overcome him at any time at a mile and a half. But a mile and a quarter is a different matter. When Kingston is just able to run faster than he in the last furlong of a it and well for the Suburban Handicap, he would have carried off that great prize. The friends of Kingston, however, were somewhat uncertain on account of the condition of the course. It was a little dusty on the surface, but heavy, close and clinging just beneath.

Garrison went off in the lead with Firenzi, while

Murphy lay quietly behind, from two to three lengths in the rear. The pace was about as slow as it could well be for the first half mile. The quarter was run in 27 seconds, the first half in 54 seconds, the first half in 54 seconds, the first half in 55 seconds; the first mile in 1:45. Plenzi, pushed to the limit of her powers, could have run the first quarter in 25 seconds; the first half in 1:45. And the first mile in 1:42, and still have had plenty in reserve. But the most difficult for all to be seen as a sound with the most difficult for all to be seen as a sound with the first mile in 1:42, and still have had plenty in reserve. But the most difficult for all to be seen as a sound with the first mile and leave Firenzi seen as the first mile and leave Firenzi seen as the first mile and leave firenzi to canter in sine. Opening a gap of two lengths, cult feat in all jockeyship is to gauge pace in front, with no horse leading by which to form an estimate. Kingston was as fast as ever in his life yesterday. The heats in the Great Long Island Stakes at Sheepshead Bay had probably done Firenzi no good (heats at heavy weights scarcely ever do a racehorse of high quality any good), and she had not received the special for yesterday's race which Kingston had obtained by his running in public in races at this meeting. It so happened, then, that the keenest edge Firenzi's speed and staying power was somewhat dulled, while never was Kingston's falchion sharper and brighter. Matt. Byrnes stood by the inner rail at the point where it seemed to him that Firenzi ought to go on at her best. He waved his handkerchief, and Garrison called on the great mare. But this call was postponed so long that the contest between these two famous horses was really confined to a spurt of three-quarters of a mile. Kingston is not a stayer tike Firenzi, but no one who has watched the whole careers of the two animals can doubt that Kingston is better sprinter than the magnificent mare. by no means the highest type of a racehorse that can run a half or three-quarters of a mile in record time or better. The horse that can equal or beat the record at a mile and a half, two or three miles, is a finer ecimen of the thoroughbred. Therefore all the intelligent enthusiasts in turf matters must rank Firenzi higher than Kingston. But Kingston is betier than the filly at a mile, and with both fit and well. on the right sort of a track, will always beat her at mile or less. Neither of the two is at home in sticky and slippery travelling. Garrison said after the race that when he called on the mare she slipped and slid all over the course, that she was utterly at a less, and could not show the tre-mendous speed and endurance which proved too much for the Bard at Monmouth Park. It was an easy victory for Kingston. Murphy did not really begin to ride him with vigor until the last hundred yards. He moved up without urging to Firenzi's head at the furiong post in the homestretch, although brenzi was nearly two lengths in front as they entered the final quarter mile. But Firenzi was under a hard drive, with Garrison forcing her unsparingly, while Kingston was taking life easily. So when the finish came, Kingston's stilling speed proved too much for the filly. Kingston won by a half length.

Some turfimen do not believe that it is a handicap for a racehorse to make the pace in front if the pace is not hot. Well, let those turfimen try it with their own horses. Fireful has been beating The Bard, and other horses by lying behind and going forward at just the time and place which suit her best. The Bard, after trying to defeat Dewdrop more than once by going out and making the pace and falling reliserably in that sort of effort, beat the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of her year without the slightest trouble when he sets the crack filly of the set of the of her year without the slightest trouble when he lay behind and came with a tremendous rush at the time and place which suited him. The careful and treputiced student of the history of the turf, both in England and America, will be compelled-although it may be against his will-to admit the soundness famous old maxim of Admiral pace in front is handicapped thereby at least seven pounds. But Firenzi could not have lain back of Streston vesterday, for even if she had been pulled to a literal walk, Kingston would simply have by her saddle, and the issue would have been decided by a rush at the end, in which Kingston, when all right, must always prove superior to Firenzi at his

There was more excitement over this finish and the of Kingston than has been seen at any one of the Eastern courses since Firenzi beat The Bard at Monmouth. The other races passed off in omparative quiet. Britannic, the favorite, won the test race easily, with Climax second and Bess third. Mr. Withers saw his horse Salisbury run wretchedly, and left the track early.

Oriflamme, ridden by the Belmont stable boy Rogers, beat the favorite, Favor, in the second race, although McLaughlin rode Favor every stride down e homestretch as if his life depended upon it. Oriflamme is now in good form, and his victory was not difficult, although it was won by a few inches only. Ovid might have had a great chance if the mistake had not been made by her jockey of pulling her back so far behind her field that she could never make up her lost ground.

Salvator outclassed Senorita, Madstone and the others in the Maple Stakes, and won without being upon. His speed was so superior to that of any one of his adversaries that Garrison was never forced to move upon him. The horse simply raced along at his own pace, and beat his field with-Senorita, under the whip, got second place, with Madstone third. The start was good and he race was won fairly on its merits. Indeed, all the starts were beyond criticism, as were all th

Garrison got a little revenge on Isaac Murphy for the result of the Kingston-Firenzi contest, by defeating Isaac on Bella B. with Prince Royal. Prince Royal was a strong favorite, as he deserved to be, since his stake races this year have proved him to be somewhat higher-class than Bella B. He ran in of somewhat higher-class than Bella B. He ran in front all the way, the pace being a mere canter for the first half-mile, and Bella B. could never get up to him in any part of the run.

The half-mile auction scramble for two-year-olds was divided into two parts. Eatontown won the first and Cartoon the second. In each the favorite was heaten; but as all the youngsters who ran were of little value, the interest taken in these affairs was not of an intense sort.

Among the incidents of the day was the presentation to Garrison by B. A. Haggin of a handsome scarf pin, in the form of a horse-hoe, set with brilliant gens, and with the name of Firenzi chelosed in antique gold letters within the horseshoe. This pin was made by Tiffany, and was an ingenious and exunisite piece of work.

Mr. Conner, president of the Second National Bank of New-Orleans, who has been present at the Brooklyn races for the last day or two, had an unpleasant experience on one of the clevated trains in the morning, his pocket having been picked of $155 in cash and a number of valuable papers. Robert Pinkerton, who is in charge of the police force at the Brooklyn rack, and is accomplishing excellent results in preserving order and preventing all friction, says that he has learned that there are a few pickpockets who are working the elevated railroad lines regularly. It is possible that he may be able to recover Mr. Conner's property for him.
